Herdman Field re-christened with ribbon cutting, big win

Cougar rout marks six months of community progress since tornado

By Miranda M. Cantrell

School officials held a special ribbon cutting ceremony on Friday, Aug. 31, at the newly-renovated Herdman Field, where the Morgan County High School Cougar football team rechristened the tornado-ravaged facility with an emotional 44-8 win over the Estill County Engineers in the season's first home game.

A contingency of school board members and district employees, coaches and athletic supporters gathered at the 50-yard line to re-dedicate the field named for the late MCHS principal and football coach Bruce Herdman, who died in a June 14, 2000, automobile accident along with his wife, Connie, and their teenage daughter, Brooke.

Several members of the Herdman family and a large crowd of fans looked on as school district employee Jason Vanhoose emceed the event from the facility's new press box.

"This ceremony is in celebration of a community that was battered, but not broken," Vanhoose said. "In honor and recognition of former principal and coach Bruce Herdman, tonight we re-dedicate Herdman Field."

Superintendent of Schools Deatrah Barnett said the field dedication was a great success for the school district.

"We are so happy and excited that the field is ready for this season's football games," Barnett said. "We will also be doing more renovations to the facility in the future."

Future permanent improvements will include locker rooms for the home and visiting teams, public restrooms and a concession and ticket sales stand.

The Cougars' win was chronicled on The Licking Valley Courier Facebook page, where one poster classified the victory as a community-wide morale booster marking six months of post-tornado progress.

"Might this be seen as some sort of sign?" Brent Elwin Engle wrote on the Courier Facebook page. "Or a type of turning point for West Liberty as a whole?"

Quarterback Larrin Collins thanked the Cougar faithful for their dedication.

"It was an absolute honor to be on that field again," Collins said. "I want to give a shoutout to the whole team, and to the fans for their amazing support. We love them and play so much harder when those stands are filled on game night!"

Complete game coverage from sportswriter David Patrick can be found elsewhere in this edition.

• The motor vehicle tax remains the 53.3 cents per $100 of value.

• The utility tax will remain at 3 percent.

Reports and informational items included an update on the new Wrigley Elementary School from Dirk Bertram of Murphy+Graves Architects.

Superintendent of Schools Deatrah Barnett said that progress continues at the construction site.

"We are still a little ahead of schedule on the new Wrigley school," Barnett said. "The

Back To The Future: Sorghum Festival

By Linda Oakley

I recently read an article about a man who wanted to come home to be buried when he died, but his wife had misgivings about resting eternally in the glow of a Dollar Store sign that now illuminated the family cemetery. The author went on to talk about changes in his hometown, the addition of new stores, and the loss of childhood landmarks. It wasn't the same place, but it was still his hometown.

It got me to thinking about the changes we have experienced in these few months since March 2. I thought back over the stories I have written about tornado survivors (there will be more of those to come), and the life-changing events they have gone through. Homes that people grew up in, homes their parents may have grown up in too, are no longer there. Businesses where folks made a living for a quarter or half century, or more, wiped from the face of the landscape.

If you go back to a place where you lived years ago, most times it takes a moment to recognize where you are. Things get torn down and new things are built. Trees that were sprouts (maybe you had planted them) have grown into giants, while the big oak in the front yard you used to climb is no longer there. Earthquakes, tornados, progress... They all take their toll on the place where you came from. They all change the face of your memories.

The one thing that does not change is you and who you are. It does not change where you are from. The author of the article wrote, "Though the landmarks of my past may shift and change.... This will always be my hometown."

I think of the places and things I remember about West Liberty when I first came here as a teenager. The old fellows who used to sit up by the courthouse and whittle, wood shavings mounding underneath them. The drive-in movie theater just outside of town, Maloney's Department Store. The people who were living then, but are now gone. Things change; nothing ever stays the same.

When Sept. 28 rolls around and the people start to come, many of them will see their hometown for the first time since the storm. Tears will sting their eyes as they come up Main Street and see the memories of their youth wiped away as if they had never been. Many will say it's just not West Liberty anymore, but they will be wrong.

As they draw close they will also see all that remains as it has always been. They will see the lay of the land and the remaining storefronts. They will see the courthouse, battered but still there. The old jail and Old Mill Park, bruised but not gone. They will see the people, smile-ing and welcoming them once again to our town. Their town, their hometown, transformed from what it was, growing into what it will be for the next generation.

People come and people go, businesses change hands and a new sign goes up. There will be things from the pre-tornado town that a new generation will never remember and the people that do remember will pass from existence. The babies born this year will be the Lynn Nickells of the future. They will record what is to come next, and the Morgan County of the future won't look the same as it does now. The winds of time blow over us all but it doesn't change what once was, it doesn't change that we were here and left our footprint on the community.

We have a unique opportunity to begin again while carrying on with old traditions, and the Sorghum Festival is one of those traditions. It is an opportunity, as the Beatles song says, to "come together." After 42 years we are coming together once again to show the world what a great place Morgan County is and why we live here. It is your chance for us to tell them that after all is said and done it's still our hometown and it is still a place to be proud of.

You may not feel much like it this year, but go on and dress your yard up with pumpkins and bows. Make an apple stack cake and put out the welcome sign. People who have come to the Sorghum Festival for years are coming again this year. I don't know about you, but I can't wait to welcome them back to our future.

Impact Kentucky comes to Morgan

Impact Kentucky volunteers in West Liberty.

On Saturday, Aug. 25, some 145 United Methodists descended upon West Liberty as part of an area-wide day of volunteer service. These volunteers were part of an outreach day entitled Impact Kentucky:

Hope Reigns. Estimates were that some 1,000 persons from around the state took part in a variety of work events in ten different counties — most of them in the eastern part of the state.

Morgan County was one of several area counties targeted because of the March 2nd tornado. Menifee, Wolfe, Magoffin, and several others affected by that storm also received large groups of volunteers. Several

HISTORICAL SKETCHES by Joe Nickell

CHARLEMAGNE. The previous sketch (published before the Tornado of March 2!) presented a biography of Gardner Hopkins--Revolutionary War soldier and early pioneer settler of Morgan County--and mentioned that he was a descendant of the major historical figure known as Charlemagne.

So venerated was this great emperor of the eighth and ninth centuries that numerous heroic legends sprouted up after his death. He was prostrated as a warrior who performed superhuman feats and as a wise ruler who bestowed perfect justice. He was even represented as having died a martyr's death, suffering for his Christian faith.

In fact he was Charles the First, "Charles the Great," King of the Franks (the generic name for the Germanic tribes of western Europe, the Frankish Empire). The eldest son of Pepin III and Bertrada, he lived from A.D. 742 to 814. By 768 he had become king, and by 804--both by inheritance and conquest--he had united most of western Europe. He instituted legal and military reforms, established schools, and promoted agriculture, commerce, the arts, and Christianity. In 800 he became the Holy Roman emperor, being crowned as such in Rome by Pope Leo III on Christmas day of that year.

Although he himself never learned to read, he encouraged education throughout his empire. He instituted the collection of literature (the old heroic sagas), the creation of a Frankish grammar, and the promotion of religious instruction in the vernacular (that is, in common speech). He gathered about him a sort of academy, and at his death (of pleurisy) he too began to be the subject of heroic legends, romances, and epics.

Yet even when all of the exaggeration is stripped away, he still deserves the name he is called in French, Charlemagne, "Charles the Great." And many Morgan Countians--those who descend from Gardner Hopkins--also descend from this great figure of European history.

See the next Historical Sketches: "Descendants of Charlemagne."

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

I am grateful to my aunt, Lucille (Nickell) Haney, for her pursuit of the Charlemagne-Morgan County connection and her help with this series.

Information for this brief biography of Charlemagne comes from standard reference sources, notably, Encyclopedia Britannica (Chicago: Ency. Brit., 1960), s.v.: "Charlemagne Legends" and "Charles the Great"; and Webster's New Universal Encyclopedia (New York: Barnes & Noble, 1997), s.v. "Charlemagne."

months of intense planning preceded the day of work itself.

Here in Morgan County, workers came from as far away as Louisville, Bowling Green, Hopkinsville, Maysville, and Liberty -- as well as quite a number from the Red Bird Missionary Conference in southeastern Kentucky: Booneville, Annville, Roark, Beverly, and Thousandsticks.

The Index Community Church graciously allowed the West Liberty United Methodist Church congregation to play host to the guest volunteers since they currently have no home church structure.

Registration took place outside the Index Church, beginning at 8:00 am, and the morning kicked off with a worship service inside. Lindsey Davis, resident United Methodist Bishop for the state of Kentucky was on hand to greet everyone and set the tone for the day's work.

A wide variety of work experiences awaited the volunteers: spreading mulch at Kiwanis Park, drywall mudding, painting in several homes, constructing forms for upcoming concrete, a ramp for someone with mobility issues, debris removal in town and at Woodsbend, and the sounds of chain saws and weed eaters ringing in the air.

The noon meal was generously spread at a picnic shelter in Old Mill Park by the host church, and included succulent country ribs provided by Hank Allen and the Commercial Bank, as well as some homemade goodies from church members. Several workers commented they would be very willing to return to assist again just for the sake of the meal!

Thanks to the Long Term Recovery Team for their help and direction in determining projects, as well as providing many of the tools used. Thanks also to other leaders from our own county to help give on-site direction to those projects.

Morgan County has been abundantly blessed over the past five months to receive the selfless and generous assistance of so many church groups and individuals. The United Methodist Impact Kentucky event was one more step along the road to our recovery.

Maybe Next President, Congress Could Learn From "On the Job" Training at Wal-Mart

By W. Lynn Nickell

Michael Duke is the CEO of Walmart, in case you never heard of him, which I hadn't until I began this article. He was born in 1949 on December 7 (Pearl Harbor Day). He is a graduate of Georgia Tech. I am not a Walmart fan, because I feel they have put too many small "mom and pop" businesses out of business. We here in West Liberty have known the feeling. Since Walmart has opened the Supercenter in Morehead it has drawn business from all of Rowan County and surrounding counties. I must admit, I do go to Walmart to purchase items that I can't find there.

I was out of colored ink for my Dell printer the other day and in search for ink which made me think of writing this article. Walmart now sells ink for a 924 printer. Previously, you had to order from Dell and go through the Philippines, Indonesia and India to get ink! Now I can call Walmart to see if they have the ink at Morehead and they will let me know in a matter of seconds if they have the ink or not. If they don't have it they will let me know the closest Walmart and what the price will be.

For the last few months I have been trying to secure my Dad's Social Security number and his World War I military records from the Department of Military Affairs. Try this some time and I will guarantee it will take you months. (To be fair with Social Security, their records only go to birth dates from 1911. Dad was born in 1900, so maybe it would take a month longer for that.)

The "facts" I am about to quote came from the Internet so you can take them as "fact or fiction," but they do make an interesting story. The Walmart giant was started from one store in Rogers, Arkansas, by Sam Walton in 1962. Walmart takes in $36,000,000 every day and makes a profit of $20,928 every minute. They employ 1.3 million workers in 3,200 stores in the U.S. and more than 1,000 in other countries, making them the largest private employer in the world. (In the U.S. each employee must be able to speak English.) Walmart now has 1,000 more stores today than it had five years ago and we are in a depression! They have branched out into four retail divisions, Walmart Supercenters, Discount Stores, Neighborhood Markets and Sam's Club. All of this is done with a board of directors totaling 15 and a CEO by the name of Michael Duke.

Could Michael Duke and his 15 cohorts run the country?

Six Months Later: Battling Back

Last Friday night I attended Morgan County High School's first home football game of the season against Estill County. My knowledge of the sport is admittedly very limited, but I went because I knew it would be a landmark event for our community.

The March 2 tornado destroyed Herdman Field, and many people questioned whether school officials would have the facility renovated in time for the game. But they delivered, and the field was re-christened with an emotional 44-8 Cougar win.

This was more than just a big victory for MCHS, though. It was symbolic of a much greater feat for Morgan County as a whole. Because two days later on Sept. 2, we marked six months since the face of our town and our lives changed forever.

Approximately a month after the tornado, an especially poignant photograph ran on the front page of The Licking Valley Courier that captured the destruction of the Commercial Bank building. An American flag hung from the wreckage. It was hauntingly reminiscent of the flag that firefighters hung from the Pentagon following the Sept. 11, 2001, terrorist attacks.

In the tornado aftermath, most of us looked upon the devastation and felt that shell-shocked 9/11 feeling once again. Magnified a million times, of course, because this tragedy was not unfolding on television in a faraway land. This was happening to us. It was just so mixed-up and irrevocably wrong.

Six months later, several buildings that once stood on Main Street are gone. Two beautiful historical churches are razed. Countless homes throughout the county are no more. The landscape from Woodsbend to Moon will undoubtedly bear tornado scars for years to come.

Sometimes it is painful to sit at my desk, in this temporary office trailer, and look out my window to see remnants of the destruction. It is hard for everybody to reconcile this dismal picture with the postcard-perfect West Liberty that we loved so dearly.

It would have been easy for local government and commerce leaders and citizens to say, "Why bother?" and let

Morgan County die a quiet death. But we opted to do something else instead:

We chose to battle back.

Judge Executive Tim Conley noted during his Aug. 24 fish fry that the majority of citizens who lost their homes to the tornado are currently in the rebuilding process. Many residential structures have been renovated or completely replaced, as reconstruction efforts continue to be chronicled via numerous media outlets.

Several businesses were decimated, but many of those sites now boast signs vowing returns to downtown West Liberty.

Commercial Bank's new Index branch opened in May, and eventually the current Main Street building will be razed so a more modern banking center can rise in the business district's heart. Citizens Bank officials will hold a groundbreaking ceremony for their new facility on Sept. 14. Work also continues on Bank of the Mountains' downtown branch and drive-thru location, as well as a new conference hall.

Countless other business triumphs are recorded in The Courier's news reports and advertisements, in addition to success stories from local government agencies, schools, churches and civic groups – including the completion of West Liberty Fire Department's new headquarters, the re-opening of West Liberty Elementary School at Boneal, faith-based volunteer efforts and July's Independence Day celebration.

Perhaps the greatest accomplishment since March 2 is that the 42nd Annual Sorghum Festival will be held Sept. 28-30 in downtown West Liberty, same as always. Not even a massive tornado could break this venerable tradition.

Morgan Countians endured unfathomable hardships in the tornado's aftermath. Many of us found ourselves charged with heightened responsibilities, but also realized our roles in the community are more crucial than ever. Instead of balking at these challenges, we summoned our inner heroes to save a town that is worth fighting for.

We are – so fervently and so proudly – battling back.

Cooperation Among Cooperatives

Licking Valley RECC linemen, Travis Nunn, Bill Turner, Ward Dickey, and Eric Adkins travelled to Baton Rouge, Louisiana, to assist DEMCO – Dixie Electric Membership Corporation in their restoration effort after Hurricane Isaac impacted many of their 100,000 members. Licking Valley RECC's employees joined 75 other men from eight different co-ops from across Kentucky who headed south to offer mutual aid. These men planned to stay about 10 days, and then will come home and other men will be going back if needed.

"We Shall Return"

You've heard the expression "most things written are not worth the paper they are printed on while other things written are "worth writing home about". This is one I consider worth writing home about. Just another meaningful lesson in life as a result of growing up in rural Morgan County.

Even though I was a very young girl at this time, I remember the place this event happened and how it made such impression on me for a lifetime.

My dad, Jonah B. Wells, had sold a mule to a neighbor "on time," as was a very common thing to do, so after a while the neighbor realized he was not able to keep his bargain and he came down the road pulling the mule and returning him to my dad and explaining his plight of not being able to keep his part of the deal.

So my dad, being the kind of man that he was, refused to take the mule back. Because he realized the need this neighbor had for the use of this animal to raise a tobacco crop and food for his family. So he told him to go ahead and use the mule as long as needed and he could pay him whenever he was able to.

This is a kind of people in Morgan County that I knew. This is the kind of place to live. No tornado can destroy the heart and soul of the people left behind. You will come alive again and be better than ever before.

"God bless our Morgan County".

Broadway First Church Of God

Sorry for the article you missed in last week's paper; it was a computer problem. We had Ed Penagras as a Gideon speaker who shared information regarding the Gideon organization. If you ever noticed a Bible in a hospital or motel room, it was placed by Gideons.

The Gideons also pass out New Testaments to some grade school children and our children entering college. Here in our county last Halloween, they gave out over 1,500 testaments at Old Mill Park to those who wanted them.

They are able to do this by donations from themselves, churches, and people like me an you. Keep them in your prayers because it is by the word of God that lives are changed.

Last Sunday's came from Matthew 20:1-7, where Jesus tells us the parable of the laborers in the vineyard. With it being Labor Day weekend, we shared what the Bible has to say about laboring.

In Genesis 3:19 it says that in the sweat of thy face shall thou eat bread, till thou returns unto the ground. Then in Exodus when God gave Moses the 10 commandments, the fourth commandment said six days shalt thou labor, and do all thy work: but the seventh day is the sabbath of the Lord thy God. Since this time mankind has had to labor to provide a living for himself and his family.

Jesus, when he was 12 years old, told his parents that he must be about his Father's business.

He also said later that he must work the works of him that sent me, while it is day, the night cometh when no man can work.

What kind of work was it that he spoke about? He stated that he came to seek and to save that which is lost. It wasn't physical work that Jesus spoke of but spiritual work. So in the parable when the householder went to hire laborers; Jesus is calling you to do spiritual work.

You may ask what does He want you to do? It would be to follow him, to do His will in your life, to be the light of the world so that the world would see Jesus through you.

Jesus wants to hire you if you are not serving Him. If we apply for a job we fill out an application which ask many different questions. It will ask our age; to Jesus it doesn't matter about your age in order to serve Him. It will ask for our sex or race which doesn't matter to the Lord. It also doesn't matter about our education that we may have. It may ask for any experience we may have; to Jesus that doesn't matter, He takes you as the song says "Just As I Am". If you are willing to ask for forgiveness and willing to make Jesus Lord of your life, you qualify to be hired.

This parable also tells that he went out early in the morning, then about the third hour, the sixth hour, the ninth hour, and the eleventh hour and still found some standing idle. Have you started working for the Lord yet? What are you waiting for?

If Jesus has knocked on your heart's door, don't wait till it is to late. You may ask about the pay; well it is out of this world!

He will give you life abundantly here and then give you life eternal. Don't be on the unemployment line when it comes to serving God.

Come worship with us, we preach about things like this.

Our worship times are: Sunday school at 10 a.m., morning worship at 11 a.m., evening service at 6 p.m., Wednesday evening at 6 p.m., and youth meeting at 6:30 p.m. with Jason Johnson. If you are looking for a home church give us a try, we will may you feel welcomed.

To contact us call 743-4736 or e-mail karleelam@hotmail.com , we'll be glad to hear from you. Until next week, may the Lord bless you is our prayer.

W.L. church holds first service in renovated sanctuary six months after tornado wrecked it

By Barbara Stacy

The West Liberty Church of Christ, on Glenn Avenue in West Liberty, sustained heavy damage in the March 2 tornado. Several residents close to the church building took refuge in the basement during the tornado and thankfully, no one was seriously hurt.

The building received damage to the roof, all but one window was blown out, ceiling, walls, flooring in the basement and in sanctuary had to be replaced and the heating and air system had to be replaced. Church pews were also damaged—they have been repaired and restored by the workers at the prison.

Through the help of many volunteers and contractors, the congregation was able to meet in the sanctuary for the first time since the tornado on Sunday, September 2, (six months after the tornado). Members had met in the showroom at Brown's Ford for several weeks following the tornado and then in the basement of the church (after it was partially finished) while necessary work was performed on the rest of the building.

There is still more work to be completed before everything is back to normal, but everyone at the West Liberty Church of Christ wishes to extend their thanks to the many wonderful groups and volunteers who have given of their time and money to help get the congregation back into the building to worship.

From out of the rubble of their tornado-damaged church, members of the congregation of the West Liberty Church of Christ on Glenn Avenue gathered Sunday, Sept. 2, for services in the church sanctuary for the first time since the tornado struck six months ago on March 2.

The West Liberty Church of Christ on Glenn Avenue as it appeared following the March 2 tornado.

The sanctuary, left, wrecked and sans part of its roof, and at right following repairs completed in time to hold services again on Sept. 2, six months following the tornado.

MEDICAL Moment

Acetaminophen— Take as Directed

Julie remembers her mother giving her Tylenol (acetaminophen), and she still thinks of it as the safest pill for treating a headache or bringing down a fever.

Parents have long been warned against giving aspirin to their children because of an increased risk of Reyes Syndrome when aspirin is taken for flu-like illness or chicken pox. As a result, acetaminophen has attained a reputation for safety that has been passed along from generation to generation.

In most cases, for healthy adults, both acetaminophen and aspirin are safe choices as long as they are taken as directed for minor problems such as a headache or fever. Adults with ulcers or illnesses that could cause internal bleeding are likely to be steered away from aspirin. And those who consume more than three alcoholic drinks a day are safer avoiding acetaminophen.

Acetaminophen can cause severe liver damage, including liver failure and death, if too much is taken or even if a moderate dose is combined with moderate amounts of alcohol.

TAKE THE RIGHT DOSE: The maximum dose for acetaminophen is four grams a day, but there is not much margin for error. Eight grams a day, experts warn, could be fatal.

If you have a glass or two of wine every night with dinner, have kidney disease, liver problems or hepatitis, you may be able to safely tolerate only two or three grams a day.

A major reason for overdose is what's known as a "staggered overdose"—repeatedly taking just a little extra. One study found that patients taking staggered overdoses had a greater risk of dying and were more likely to have liver or brain problems. Most subjects listed pain as the primary reason they had repeatedly taken the extra dose. Cindy Crager, APRN

WATCH OUT FOR HIDDEN DOSES: One problem is that acetaminophen is an active ingredient in several hundred over-the-counter and prescription medications, including those recommended for pain, fever, colds and flu, allergy and insomnia.

These medications are best known by their brand names such as Vicodin or Percocet, and even if you know these drugs contain acetaminophen, it's easy to forget this fact when you're searching for pain relief.

A 2009 FDA regulation requires that the word "acetaminophen" be placed on the front of the package and on the "Drug Facts" label of all products containing acetaminophen. Prescription products, however, do not have a "Drug Facts" label, and pharmacists often use the acronym APAP or some shortened version of the term.

In January, 2011, the FDA asked drug makers to limit the amount of acetaminophen in combination products to 325 milligrams per tablet or capsule. In the past, some of these products—particularly opioids containing codeine, such as oxycodone and hydrocodone—contained as much as 750 milligrams. The dose restriction does not apply to over-the-counter pain medications or cold, sinus or cough remedies.

The new regulations will be phased in over three years. In the meantime, the FDA says, patients should talk to their doctors and be careful not to exceed the four-gram maximum per day of acetaminophen.

ELIMINATE DOSING ERRORS: Even formulations clearly labeled acetaminophen come in a variety of forms—drops, syrups, capsules and pills—making it more difficult to determine proper dosing.

In May of 2011, an FDA advisory panel recommended that all pediatric acetaminophen products be produced in one strength only—160 milligrams per 5 milliliters (as opposed to 80 mg/0.8 mL). The panel also recommended dosing instructions based on weight rather than age.

As these new formulations come to market, there is an interim period when older product may still be on the shelves, creating more possibilities for dosing errors.

Acetaminophen is one of the most widely used medications in the United States. And, when used as directed, it is as safe as Julie and other Americans believe. The FDA, however, now requires a Boxed Warning on all prescription acetaminophen products, highlighting the potential for severe liver injury.

The greatest risks come from:

- taking more than four grams in a 24-hour period;
- taking more than one product containing acetaminophen at the same time, and
- drinking alcohol while taking the drug.

Staying safe means following one simple rule: take as directed.

Caney Valley News

By Tracey B. Hatton

Sept. 3--Hello again from Caney Valley. As Labor Day has come and gone, it was a holiday for most but some still had to work and they actually did do labor on Labor Day. This is a Call to Action!! Many of you probably watch the evening news. On Friday evening the team was reporting on the Deployment Celebration held in Frankfort for the National Guard Unit that will be going to Africa in October. It was a time for family and friends to be together and have a celebration with their loved ones. We are blessed and honored to have a young man in our community serving his country in this capacity. Mr. Ryan Stacy. He is the son of Vernon and Tina Stacy, grandson of Evalee

Morgan rededicates field, beats Estill in Donnie McKenzie Kickoff Classic

"As long as it's in your heart, you can come back from anything" —Walker Crase

By David Patrick

Last Friday was a special night in Morgan County, one that will never be duplicated.

For the second straight season, West Liberty honored one of its most beloved citizens by playing a football game in his honor, the Donnie McKenzie Kickoff Classic.

But for Donnie and hundreds like him, a night like this seemed almost impossible to imagine six months ago. On March 2, a devastating tornado ripped through West Liberty wiping out literally everything in its path, including the two places most associated with Donnie: McKenzie's Pool Room and Herdman Field.

By the grace of God, Donnie survived the storms' direct hit on his business, thanks to the shelter of, you guessed it, a pool table. And he survived to witness a special night.

Not only was Donnie honored in the season opener, but West Liberty received a gift as well with the rededication of Herdman Field.

"It's unbelievable, I'm just so happy and tickled I can't hardly stand it," McKenzie said prior to kickoff.

And he wasn't the only one. Morgan County Judge-Executive Tim Conley was all smiles as he took in the special occasion.

"You look at these cheerleaders, the ball players and our friend Donnie McKenzie; Morgan County is alive and well. It's one of the most wonderful nights you could have."

Herdman Field was indeed a beautiful sight on Friday. The field was green with perfectly painted lines and logos and the press box was rebuilt. The scoreboard was brand new and better than ever, with a scrolling message board at the bottom. And then came a ribbon cutting ceremony, with dozens of dignitaries, school officials and former players participating.

Much to the delight of Donnie and the Judge, Morgan County made quick work of a quality opponent. The Cougars scored early and often en route to a 44-8 blowout of Estill County.

Junior running back Kody Thornsberry made sure Morgan lit up the brand new scoreboard first with an electrifying 50 yard touchdown around right end. Jordan Whitt's two-point conversion staked the home team to an 8-0 lead at the 5:51 mark of the first quarter.

The Cougar defense responded by forcing a fumble, which was recovered by linebacker Devon Banks near midfield.

Quarterback Larrin Collins then went to the air, hitting Chase Turner along the Cougar sidelines for a first down gain.

Collins finished the drive with a two-yard scoring run up the middle, with Whitt adding the two point conversion to make it 16-0.

The Morgan County special teams got into the act, executing a perfect on-sides kick recovered by Thornsberry. The Cougar running back then turned in the drive's key play, a 25 yard run, to put the ball deep in Estill territory. Walker Crase's one yard carry coupled with yet another two-point conversion from Whitt staked Morgan with a 24-0 lead at the half.

That lead continued to grow in the third period. Collins completed his second pass of the game on a perfectly thrown 35 yard scoring strike to Thornsberry in the left corner of the end zone to make it 32-0.

Morgan then got a bit too relaxed on special teams—and paid for it. Sophomore Deron Miller fielded the ensuing kickoff at his own 19, veered left, found some running room and sprinted literally untouched for the 81 yard scoring return. That would be the only score a stingy Cougar team would allow on this night.

Morgan got that score back and more thanks to a 35 yard gain from Crase to set up a touchdown run by Whitt late in the third. Whitt then added the Cougars final tally with a tough three yard run with just under six minutes to go in the game.

Just a year removed from a heartbreaking last second loss at Estill, Turner's "Double-Wing" offense rolled up nearly 400 yards of total offense, including 342 on the ground. Thornsberry was nothing short of spectacular, rushing for 141 yards on 16 carries to earn game MVP honors. Crase muscled his way to 94 yards, banging off would-be tacklers to keep many a scoring drive alive.

"This means a lot to fans, me and the team that we can come out and show everybody that a tornado can't keep us down," said Crase, who was named Offensive Player of the Game. "As long as it's in your heart, you can come back with anything."

Morgan's defense and special teams nearly pitched a shutout, aside from the kick return for a score by Estill. Banks earned top defensive honors, racking up a team-high five tackles along with the aforementioned fumble recovery.

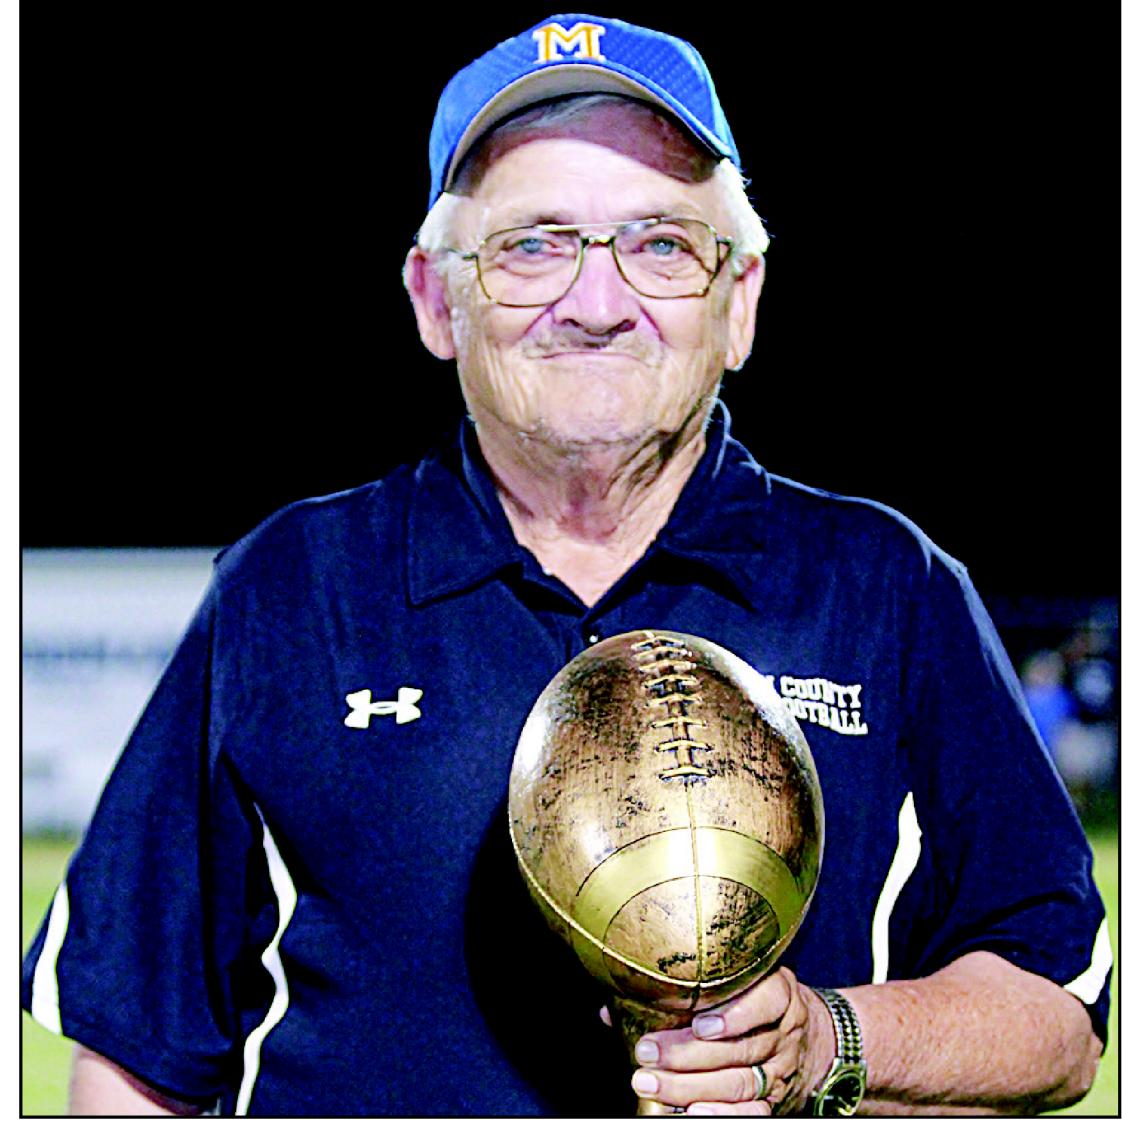

But after the game, the attention again shifted to Donnie McKenzie, who was presented the championship trophy while surrounded by an excited group of players and coaches.

"All those years that Don has worked in our program and what's he done for our kids is a big deal," Turner said at midfield. "Don's had a big part in holding this thing together."

As for Donnie, he already had plans for the Kickoff Classic Trophy.

"The trophy is the first thing that will go in my new business. I'm 2-0 now, undefeated in these games. I asked the boys to get out there and score because I don't like these close games. They did what I asked them to do."

It seems the players always have Donnie's back, as he has theirs. For Morgan County football, that's a winning combination.

Donnie McKenzie proudly holds the Kickoff Classic championship trophy that bears his name Kody Thornsberry was named MVP on the Donnie McKenzie Classic. He ran for 141 yards, including the game's first touchdown.

Morgan County Ladies' Golf Team excels at All A Classic

With a 3rd place finish out of 10 competing schools and an 8th grader headed to the State All A Classic competition for the second consecutive year, the Morgan County Ladies' Golf Team is flying high in 2012.

Eighth grader Morgan

Markwell took 1st place at the regional All A Classic held at Fairview on Tuesday, Aug. 21. She shot a 40 over the 9 hole competition and was joined by teammate Sydney Trimble, who shot a 45. Trimble missed going to state competition by only three strokes in helping lead her team to a respectable 3rd place medal.

Completing the competing team on Tuesday were Leahshea Vance, Emily Cole, and Abby Lemaster. Rounding out the entire team are Bryanna Brown, Jenna Price, Madison Cline, Taylor Prater, and Morgan Farmer.

Congratulations to the team.

Said Coach Bradley. "These young ladies compete against older, more experienced upperclassmen and we expect to see even more from these ladies as most are middle school students and will only get better over the next few years."

A Fascinating Story!

A lady in a faded gingham dress and her husband, dressed in a homespun threadbare suit, stepped off the train in Boston, and walked timidly without an appointment into the president of Harvard's outer office. The secretary could tell in a moment that such backwoods, country hicks had no business at Harvard and probably didn't even deserve to be in Cambridge.

She frowned. "We want to see the president," the man said softly. "He'll be busy all day," the secretary snapped. "We'll wait," the lady replied. For hours, the secretary ignored them, hoping that the couple would finally become discouraged and go away.

They didn't. And the secretary grew frustrated and finally decided to disturb the president, even though it was a chore she always regretted to do. "Maybe if they just see you for a few minutes, they'll leave," she told him.

And he sighed in exasperation and nodded. Someone of his importance obviously didn't have the time to spend with them, but he detested gingham dresses and homespun suits cluttering up his outer office. The president, stern-faced with dignity, strutted toward the couple. The lady told him, "We had a son that attended Harvard for one year. He loved Harvard. He was happy here. But about a year ago, he was accidentally killed. And my husband and I would like to erect a memorial to him, somewhere on campus."

The president wasn't touched, he was shocked. "Madam," he said gruffly. "We can't put up a statue for every person who attended Harvard and died. If we did, this place would look like a cemetery". "Oh, no," the lady explained quickly. "We don't want to erect a statue."

We thought we would like to give a building to Harvard." The president rolled his eyes. He glanced at the gingham dress and homespun suit, then exclaimed, "A building! Do you have any earthly idea how much a building costs? We have over seven and a half million dollars in the physical plant at Harvard." For a moment the lady was silent. The president was pleased. He could get rid of them now. And the lady turned to her husband and said quietly, "Is that all it costs to start a University? Why don't we just start our own?" Her husband nodded. The president's face wilted in confusion and bewilderment. And Mr. and Mrs. Leland Stanford walked away, traveling to Palo Alto, California where they established the University that bears their name, a memorial to a son that Harvard no longer cared about.

"You can easily judge the character of others by how they treat those who can do nothing for them or to them." Malcolm Forbes

West Nile outbreak in U.S. 'one of the largest'

U.S. health officials last week reported three times the usual number of West Nile virus cases for this time of year, and one expert told The Associated Press it is "one of the largest" outbreaks since the virus appeared in this country in 1999.

So far, 1,118 illnesses have been reported, about half of them in Texas, according to the federal Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. In an average year, fewer than 300 cases are reported by mid-August.

There have also been 41 deaths this year. Most infections are usually reported in August and September, so it's too early to say how bad this year will end up, CDC officials said.

AP reports that West Nile virus peaked in 2002 and 2003, when severe illnesses reached nearly 3,000 and deaths surpassed 260.

The best way to prevent West Nile disease, say experts, is to avoid mosquito bites. Insect repellents, screens on doors and windows and wearing long sleeves and pants are some of the recommended strategies. Also, empty standing water from buckets, kiddie pools and other places to discourage breeding.
